There is no secret conferences in remote hotel parlors, because there is nothing to confer about. The work of the convention is all mapped out, and at the present time the party leaders are bound hand and foot, roped and hog the lariest of the Rough Rider has other planks which he will urge but

It is well that there is some uncertainty about the Vice-Presidency and the platform. Otherwise many of the These planks are delegates would undoubtedly feel called upon to go home and get some real influence in the Republican party. Any excitement ploughing corn. If this was a Democratic crowd waiting to be called together in convention like 980 garment-workers reporting for work in a sweatshop, the delegates would be engaged in drinking themselves to death, individually and collectively.

Hoping for a Stampede. The Republican brethren, however, are largely occupants of the water wagon. Many of them dissipated today to the extent of forming parties to walk out on the lake front and see the dredges and steam shovels at work building a park out into Lake Michigan.

The Republican National Committee has given a pledge to Chicago that the convention will last four days. It is a question in the minds of quite a few here present how they are going to stretch the proceedings into four sessions, unless they make three of them hand concerts.

What gives the allied opposition to the administration until Wednesday noon with the declares that New England, New Jersey, who got in with the Jersey delegation last night, declares that New England, New Jersey, New York and Illinois will fight shoulder to shoulder against anything that may be construed as an attack upon the judiciary.
